

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 2, 1921.

CLOSING EXERCISES
Witnessed By Many Friends of School At Commencement.
SENIOR PLAY WELL RECEIVED.

The commencement exercises of the Lancaster High School, held Thursday night at the Auditorium were splendid and highly enjoyable to the large attendance present. The stage was made attractive with ferns and flowers, flags and draperies of red and white, the class colors. The "Girls Glee Club" gave two pretty numbers. Mr. Howard E. Taylor, of Berea, made a splendid address on the ideals of a real life and said that courtesy, smile and willingness lead to a successful life. Prof. Paul Boyd presented the class with diplomas. The following program was given: Invocation—Rev. C. D. Strother. "I Would That My Love"—Girls Chorus.

Commencement Address—H. E. Taylor.

"Silver Eyes"—Girls Chorus.

Presentation of diplomas.

Benediction—Rev. E. B. Bourland.

We congratulate this class of splendid young men and women for having reached the goal for which they have strived for years.

They deserve the honors they have received and well merit the plaudits of a generous public. Citizens of Lancaster and Garrard county have sacrificed much to build and maintain the excellent schools we have, and parents have experienced self denial and sacrifice to give their children this opportunity, and only in lives of usefulness lived by the graduates will justify and pay the cost.

Lancaster has sent out from her school every year young men and women who have taken front rank in the business and the professional world and some have become distinguished. We dare say that those who received their diplomas last Thursday evening will be any exception, for to our mind we think it one of the brightest classes that has graduated from our school.

The Senior Play.

"The Masonic Ring" presented by the Class of 1921 on Friday evening at the Auditorium was most entertaining and brought to a close the city school. Prof. Paul Boyd, Superintendent and his assistants deserve great praise for the successful term the past year. The program was splendid throughout and each character was exceptionally fine. The cast of characters were:

Roderick York—Henry Moore
Bartholemew—Farebrother—Eugene Cochran

Fred Hall—Clyde Holtzclaw
Mrs. Roderick York—Lucille Sutton
Ethel Winn—Martha Ward Sweeney
Madame York—Mayme Stapp
Peace York—Ruby Gastineau
Miss Delaney Jones—Virginia Beasley

Tillie McCormick—Edith Moore

Between the acts, Miss Ruth Taylor, an expression pupil of Miss Ruth Carrier, gave a reading which was fine and she displayed talent in the highest degree and acquitted herself in a manner that reflected honor upon on Miss Carrier.

A Distinguished Soldier

The importance of the interview with Col. H. C. Whitehead which appears on another page of this issue, prompts some notations about the Colonel himself.

An officer of wide and varied experience, Colonel Whitehead has specialized on the subjects of cavalry remounts, and the care of the marching soldier's feet; and he was for two years before the last war the accredited representative of the United States Government, attached to the German Staff, in order that our army might profit by the investigations of so eminent authority on these two lines of research.

It is perhaps not generally known to Kentuckians that Colonel Whitehead's office in Lexington is the headquarters, or main office, of the United States Army Remount Association. The significance of this choice of location is apparent. Kentucky, the home of the thoroughbred, is the logical headquarters of a national organization devoted to the improvement of the country's supply of horses by means of the introduction of the potent thoroughbred strain.

REV. C. D. STROTHER
To Leave Lancaster.

It is with a tinge of deep regret that we are compelled to announce that Rev. C. D. Strother, who has served as pastor of the local Baptist church for three years, has resigned his services here and left this week for his new home, New Albany, Ind., where he has accepted the pastorate of the leading Baptist church in that city.

While serving his new church, he will pursue further his studies at the Louisville Baptist Seminary, it being the main reason he gives us for leaving the local church.

No pastor who has served a church in Lancaster, leaves more friends than Mr. Strother, being exceedingly popular with all people especially with the younger set, irrespective of church affiliations.

The best wishes of the entire community go with him, his estimable wife and young son, and we extend congratulations to the members of his new church upon securing his services, realizing what is our sad loss, is their happy gain.

GREAT WORK
Being Done By Demonstration Agent.

The work in Garrard county, that is being done by Miss Joyce Syler, the County Home Demonstration Agent, is very commendable and we doubt if the people of the county, as a whole realize the importance of this splendid work. Miss Syler was sent here by the Federal Government about six months ago, to take up this work in Garrard county the expense of her entire time so far, having been borne by the state and U. S. Government.

Since coming among us Miss Syler has made numerous friends among the younger boys and girls, especially with those who have joined either some of the sewing or garment making projects and among the boys of the Pig Club she has organized. All this she has done, to say nothing of the interest she has aroused among the poultry growers, as well as the canning and gardening interests all over the county.

The County Board of Education have seen the fruits of her labors and have intimated that an appropriation toward this work might come from this board. In which case the Fiscal Court will be asked to assist in the work and give an appropriation of $300.00. Unless the county officials show sufficient interest in the work of Miss Syler, in sharing one-half of the expense, her work will be withdrawn from the county.

Cattle Killed.

Last Thursday about noon, J. L. Hamilton had the misfortune to lose four head of nice cattle, all killed by lightning. Among the bunch was a fine Jersey cow he had just purchased at a cost of $175.00. Mr. Hamilton lost several head of cattle a few weeks ago from black leg.

Teachers Examination.

There will be a teachers examination held at the court house in Lancaster, Friday and Saturday, June 17th. and 18th. Those desiring to take such examination must be on hand promptly.

Double Header

We are carrying in this issue, Garrard county's democratic candidates, subject to the action of the primary August 6th. We were sorry not to get pictures of all the candidates and a few of them we were unable to get at all. You can learn all about them if you will turn to the center of the first section of this paper.

Race Riot Raging. Seventy-five persons, whites and negroes, have been killed in a race riot which started in Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday night.

Nearly ten square blocks of the negro section where an armed conflict has been in progress between white men and negroes since Tuesday night resulting in the death of at least six white persons and fifty negroes, and a rapidly increasing list of wounded, were in flames Wednesday.

The fire was reported spreading and threatening to wipe out a white residence section in the Sandpipe Sunset Hill addition.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING
(Editorial)

We are a friend of and interested in the movement to organize the tobacco industry for co-operative marketing of the product. The movement is being fostered by Judge R. W. Bingham, editor and publisher of the Courier Journal and Times, with the assistance of Mr. Aaron Sapiro, a brilliant attorney and recognized marketing expert of California. It is well to keep before the public that Judge Bingham has no selfish purposes in this undertaking. He expects no remuneration for his outlay of money and efforts, but being aroused by the helpless conditions observed by him which the tobacco growers faced at the opening of last season's market, brought on by the antiquated method of selling tobacco, and which brought ruin to this class of citizens, he was moved to offer to them his ability, and his great news papers and a portion of his means, and to challenge their confidence in his leadership we may add that he offers his good name too, to lend in a movement to relieve them of the impositions of that old and destructive method, by substituting the modern, tried and successful method, the co-operative marketing plan. We have carefully and critically considered this plan of co-operative marketing of tobacco as presented by Mr. Sapiro, and are convinced that it is practical and ought to be adopted by the growers of tobacco.

They already know that no method of selling could be much worse than the auction system which sacrificed the 1920 crop to the grower. We believe the adoption of a plan of co-operative marketing to be the salvation of the tobacco industry and therefore urge the professional man, and the business man as well as the farmer to give this movement consideration and encouragement and after an understanding is had, to get behind it and help to bring the plan into successful operation. When the tobacco grower has prepared and delivered this crop, it is taken over by the marketing organization, composed of representatives selected by the growers and graded and stored.

The grower is paid upon delivery for each grade the estimated price the grade will eventually bring, less the cost of storage and handling. When each grade is finally sold the grower is settled with by the grade, what it finally realizes, less the actual expenses. We are convinced that if this movement is successful, the amount paid the grower upon delivery will be more than the average he will receive for his crop in five years should the movement fail. In that event he would have as a bonus the sum to be paid to him on the final sale of all the grades. This is no new plan, that is, there is nothing new in organization for co-operative selling of farm products. Organization after organization has been brought into existence for the sale of both perishable and non-perishable farm products, which have been pre-eminently successful and satisfactory to the farmers connected with them. And there is no reason why this movement should not have the support and encouragement of all classes of business men in the tobacco growing sections. We have all faith in the integrity, ability and good purposes of Judge Bingham and his associates. We are unable to offer any criticism to the plans of organization. We know the tobacco grower needs help in the marketing of his tobacco. Therefore, the Record enlists as a sympathizer and offers its space and influence as a helper in making the undertaking a success.

Death of Little Child.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Vanderpool, of Hubble, have the sympathy of their many friends in the loss of their little baby boy, A. W., Jr., just a little over two years old, who died at the home of his parents last Monday after an acute illness of flux. Mrs. Vanderpool, who has been seriously ill of the same trouble, is reported better at this writing. Burial of the baby took place in Danville Tuesday afternoon.

Colson

Mr. W. G. Colson, aged sixty-four years, died of Bright's disease at his home in Virginia, near Middletown, at 1:30 Thursday, May 19th. He had been ill for some time and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Colson was a brother of the late Congressman, David G. Colson and was a popular citizen of this section. He left a vast estate, including farms and city property.

Mr. Colson is survived by four sisters, three sons and four daughters, and a large number of relatives.

Brief funeral services were conducted at the home in Virginia, after which the services were continued at the Methodist Church in Middletown, where he had long been a member. After the church services the Masonic Lodge conducted the burial services, which were in the Colson cemetery.

The Citizen, (A Pineville paper.) Mrs. W. B. Moss is one surviving sister. She was accompanied to Virginia and Middletown to attend the funeral by her daughters, Mrs. H. C. Bailey and Mrs. Walton E. Moss.

LOOKS GOOD

Prospect Flattering For Chamber Of Commerce

About fifty of the citizens and business men of the city and county met with the organization committee of the Chamber of Commerce last Monday evening and favorable expressions were had from all present that a Chamber of Commerce for Lancaster and Garrard county must not fail, but that it must materialize and all present gave promise of their support in assisting to raise memberships and the necessary funds, that all agreed should be raised before the success of the organization was assured. These men met at the rooms of the new Masonic Hall, where strawberries, ices and cakes were served by several ladies of the town. These ladies deserve the thanks of all for their assistance and which added so much to the pleasure of the evening.

Membership committees are at work this week and every citizen of the town will be canvassed during the next ten days or possibly before the week is gone. Nothing at this time will mean more to the town and to Garrard county than a good live Chamber of Commerce and those who are behind the movement, say that it will be put across.

Altogether now boys. A long pull and a strong pull and let our motto be: "All for one and one for all."

BIG SLASH

In Railway Wages Ordered by Board.

$400,000,000 CUT.

2,000,000 Men Affected.

Chicago, June 1st.—Approximately two-thirds of the wage increase granted railroad employees last July by the Railroad Labor Board was ordered deducted beginning July 1st, in the board's decision announced today.

From the increase last year $600,000,000 a year in salaries of railroad labor, nearly $400,000,000 will be cut, it is estimated by the reductions directed by the board.

In the case of the general class of maintenance of way laborers, the entire increase of 8½ cents an hour was withdrawn while in others of the classes having the larger number of employees, the cuts ranged from 18 to 8 and from 10 to 6 cents an hour as compared with the award of last July.

Altho the wage cuts are to apply on only 104 roads which had filed petitions for decreases, the board's announcement said that application of other roads would cause the same reductions to be placed in effect on those lines. The decreases, it is estimated, eventually will affect two million men. The general average decreases is placed at 12 per cent as compared with an average of 21 per cent increase granted last July.

She is survived by her husband, Wordly Kinnard, and five children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hopkins, of Garrard county; three sisters, Mrs. Daniel Burg, Hamilton, O.; Misses Grace and Myrtle Hopkins and seven brothers, Otis, Strother, Carmen, Earl, William and George Hopkins, all of Garrard county.

The body of Mrs. Margaret E. Kinnard, 27 years old, who died at her home 832 Bennett avenue, Friday afternoon will be taken to Paint Lick on the 10 o'clock Louisville & Nashville train this morning, where burial will take place.

She is survived by her husband, Wordly Kinnard, and five children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hopkins, of Garrard county; three sisters, Mrs. Daniel Burg, Hamilton, O.; Misses Grace and Myrtle Hopkins and seven brothers, Otis, Strother, Carmen, Earl, William and George Hopkins, all of Garrard county.

Dorton.

Moses Dorton, aged 82 years, died at his home on the Lexington pike last Tuesday morning about 8:30 o'clock, after an illness of several years. About two years ago he sustained a fall from which he had never recovered, and since that time was confined to his bed. His wife preceded him to the grave about two years ago.

He is survived by ten children, all grown and residents of this county. Mr. Dorton was one of Garrard's most prominent farmers and his death removes another of our oldest and best citizens.

Funeral services were conducted at the grave yesterday, by Rev. C. D. Strother, interment following in the Lancaster cemetery.

Remembered Here.

Mr. J. R. Haselden attended the burial of Emma Tillett at Flemingsburg last week, where she made her home for several years.

Mrs. Tillett is well remembered here, having been the wife of the late Oscar Tillett, formerly of this city.

MANY CASES

Treated At Clinic Held Last Week.

The clinic for eye sufferers closed Friday, May 27th, with a total attendance of about two hundred.

Forty-three of these cases were trachoma, 19 were treated surgically, 12 were old cases beyond help, 8 refused to have work done, one case was referred to the Government Hospital, at Jackson, for extensive operation and hospital care, two were small children where home treatment was advised and it is hoped that they may become arrested cases, not needing further treatment. One patient came in too late for surgical operation. Besides these trachoma cases, Dr. Downes performed six other operations and advised all cases as to their several needs.

After the work at the Court House had been completed Dr. Downes visited the local school, examining about one hundred children. He felt satisfied that there were no children attending this school suffering from trachoma.

In a letter which Dr. Downes addressed to Miss Linda Neville, who is so vitally interested in this work, throughout the State, he writes: "The clinic here in Lancaster is a great success, lots of trachoma in all stages and the best kind of co-operation from everybody." Miss Neville would have been present throughout the week adding much to the clinic with her enthusiasm had not she been called to Cleveland to attend the conference of all Red Cross Representatives from the four states making up the Lake division.

Neville would have been present throughout the week adding much to the clinic with her enthusiasm had not she been called to Cleveland to attend the conference of all Red Cross Representatives from the four states making up the Lake division.

It is largely through her efforts that these clinics have been made possible for the people of Kentucky.

Miss Sallie Elkin, Vice Chairman of the local Red Cross Chapter, acted as hostess and was assisted by the ladies of the various churches in serving bountiful meals three times a day to all those who attended the clinic and their friends.

Much credit is due Miss Elkin and her committee for keeping up the spirit of hospitality and good cheer throughout the week. The physicians of the county and all those so vitally interested in making this, their first clinic a success, appreciate the untiring efforts of these ladies.

Think This Over

Press dispatches have been paving the way for another huge French loan to be placed in the United States. This time, if the dispatches are correct, we will be asked to lend a cool hundred million dollars to our friends across the water, in addition to the billions they already owe us.

The cables also tell another story—a very interesting one.

Paris is going fashion mad. The whirl of gayety is the liveliest that has been seen in many years. Stupendous sums of money are spent on jewels, and dress, and the races, and the opera, and the continual round of expensive receptions and entertainments.

They have plenty of money with which to satisfy their vanity or their craving for excitement, but apparently they have none for the rehabilitation of France.

We are not fond of criticizing our neighbors, for we wish all nations and all peoples well.

But we feel that the time has arrived for a just criticism—a criticism that the French have brought upon themselves by their social prodigality when a season of frugality is imperative.

If the French government wants another hundred million dollars it should apply to its own people who are throwing their money away on frivolity.

The French exhibited a sublime patriotism during the war. Even a small portion of the same patriotic spirit in time of peaceful reconstruction will supply the French government with all of the money it requires.

If the French people who are so prodigal in their spending have not sufficient faith in their government to advance the funds it requires then that fact itself is sufficient reason.

for America to say "No." Close the door to the new French loan.

That hundred million dollars can be profitably employed right here in our own country.

Too Many Aces.

"I want Our America to have nothing to do with any nation that is not willing to sit at the table and show its cards," said the president in a recent New York speech.

A fine sentiment, and one which would revolutionize the world if other nations desired and practiced the same.

Laying their cards on the table, though, is just what the nations of the old world will not do. European countries have been steeped in diplomatic duplicity for so many years it has become bred in the bone, a part of their national life.

To carry out the laudable desire of the president it would be necessary to build a Chinese wall around the United States and seal every entrance and exit. We would have to shut off all communication with the outside world and become a nation completely isolated from the rest of humanity.

Lay their cards on the table? We fear every deck would contain at least a dozen aces.

Throwing Stones.

The public is becoming nauseated with the case of the New York banker who brought suit for divorce against his wife, claiming that another man is the father of her baby boy.

The wife fought for her good name and the legitimacy of her child, and she fought hard and with startling results. She charged, and claims to be able to prove, that the banker, while attacking her purity, was even deeper in the mire—was in fact maintaining another woman as his wife under an assumed name. There, too, a child is to be found.

Before this attempt to besmirch his wife in order to secure his freedom he was a man of commanding position in the financial world. Now he is no longer at the head of his bank, is looked upon with suspicion by the public, and is said to be contemplating for a residence abroad.

He can be spared—he will not be missed—the air may even be purer when he is gone.

The American people do not look with favor upon guilty men who throw stones.

Use The Iron Fist.

Many country people are viewing the reign of banditry in the cities with increasing uneasiness.

Instead of diminishing, the number of criminals seems to be increasing. There appears to be no end to them.

Men who, through lack of employment, enter a life of crime do not like to go back to work again. Stealing requires less exertion.

If the city authorities wake up and drive these hordes of bandits from their limits at least a portion of them will be migrating to the country in search of easy prey. Our own community may not be exempt from their unwelcome visits.

An iron fist should be waiting for every one of them who invades this territory.

Unwelcome guests should not be permitted to grow grass under their feet in our midst. Keep 'em moving.

Slash Again.

Short skirts for women have been vindicated.

Hurrah! Cut off another foot or two!

Statistics gathered in Chicago show that the short skirt is responsible for reducing the number of accidents to women in boarding and alighting from street cars and trains.

"Before the advent of the short skirt innumerable falls were caused by women stepping on their own skirts. Now the short skirts are cutting down the number of accidents," says the statistician.

Hurrah again! Off with still a little more!

We men will look the other way—when our wives are around.

Too Many Somebodys.

Mr. Hoover says that 4,300, workers are idle in Europe. In this country an even greater number are idle.

Europe was prostrated by the great war, wrecked in body, soul and finances. America was financially benefited.

Why are so many people idle in this country when every man should be producing something?

There is some excuse for idleness in Europe. There is no excuse here.

The comparison is not flattering to our intelligence, but looking the truth in the face may do some good.

Some one is gumming the works and throwing monkey wrenches into the machinery. Too many somebodys, we fear.

If hard times keep on coming much longer they may get by us before we recognize them.

Tuscan Superstition.

In Tuscany, there is a little plant which grows on the walls, whose tiny flowers are of whitish rose color. It is gathered on Ascension day and hung up until the eighth of September; and for those who do this, the Virgin has great favor and will protect them from all evil. If this plant will not blossom while hanging, it is a bad omen.

Harden House Plants.

If you have been starting house plants in the house, be sure that you harden them off well before you transfer them to the open ground. This means gradually exposing them to the outside air, or, better still, setting them in a cold frame, which can be covered at night; if you haven't any glass for such a frame, you can cover it with prepared cloth, which is much cheaper and just as satisfactory.

Democratic Candidates

THE COUNTY COMMITTEE

The party in Garrard County are Committee, composed of two men from each of the seven towns. The status of the two men since the last County election, which has practically been, and since the disastrous election in November, 1919, and last year, giving the opposition National government, all has been that steps to unite the party was prominently in order if November, 1921, was hoped for. A full County ticket in the election carried some doubt, unless the capable and worthy democrats in County and District offices, resolved that it would not be necessary. Aware that hotly contested past have usually resulted in defeat in the general election and even chance in the county good democrat in the counsels for our party in Garrard in August. Moved by this spirit of laying a foundation committee has brought together on occasions the leading democratic conventions, duly advertised in the county have agreed to serve for election, democrats people, capable and suited for to avoid a primary in the discussions and public expression of county democracy of candidates own. The committee and the belief that their efforts to avoid primary will be considered and cast in other counties of which and plans promoted by the set with the approval and cooperation of district our struggling band it is the part that the district acted help in the contest of the. Actuated by this controlling committee is presenting nominations for the various county offices and are recommended and nominated without primary and are requesting that wise consider the recommendation without involving primary. The statement and as presented in this issue are at the instance of the County committee considers this the ticket to be had and believes in the democrats of the country.

Offered to the voters of Garrard a democratic ticket at this time? You ask that the republican be endorsed and the election of will be an endorsement. The present administration is too not been a mile of new turn of present administration. Less work has been done. There in twenty years that has not in the same length of time, action has increased, but at the same time investing money and having no money to add. This action by the administration to the county of this large committee can point the voter to their candidate, Mr. J. C. Williams, of money available for road under the supervision of a job all the time. The committee have heretofore affiliated in the party will endorse this fiscal. Republicans have been heard to say it in the expression that it administration. This expression to the voters before the election explained. The democratic committee that if the ticket presented the managing of the county. What can the people hope similar county administration? to elect another county repudiating the present republican

HON. J. C. WILLIAMS

The sterling worth and good traits of character of Mr. J. C. Williams, are well known to the people of Garrard county.

That he is qualified and equally as well suited for the versatile requirements of this most important office in the county is frankly conceded by any opposition that may be found.

The party authorities and leaders present him to the public as the very best material to be had in the county for County Judge.

Mr. Williams was born and raised in our county. His active and successful business life has been spent here. He is widely known as one of our most progressive farmers and stockmen. His successful leadership of the Bryantsville Bank, as cashier, has given him training as a business man of wide experience, so essential to satisfactorily handle the responsible fiscal affairs of Garrard County.

Under his administration if elected, the county will take over all the State revenue for roads, which the present administrator for two years declined, which reduced the road funds about $25,000.00 for the three years. The county will also have a County road Engineer equal to the responsibilities of the position, selected for his fitness only and who will be on the job twelve months in each year, all of his time.

The candidate is a man who in private life makes good his promise, therefore many voters now look hopefully forward to his installation into the office of County Judge of Garrard County. Hon. J. C. Williams thereby having the road system of the county placed upon a real business basis, and not handled as a political asset nor as a family grant, with the unanimous endorsement of two Mass Conventions, the executive committee of his party with satisfaction, presents the candidacy of Hon. J. C. Williams for County Judge of Garrard County, with confidence that he will be elected in November.

HON. GREEN

CLAY WALKER

In presenting the candidacy of the Hon. Green Clay Walker as a candidate for re-nomination for County Attorney, it is not necessary to make any promises or pledges for him; for his past fidelity to the trust, and the faithful and able manner in which the duties have been performed in his few years of service as County Attorney are an all sufficient guarantee for the future. It has become too well known to require elaborate mention how fair to all in administering this office, yet firm and determined is this gentleman in the enforcement of the criminal statutes, to the end, that good order and observance of law is the merited pride of citizenship of the entire county.

The fact that the County has not suffered a penny loss in an action in a court of law during his incumbency as legal representative of the County is a claim made for him by his host of friends who are boosting him for re-election. This candidate is admired and liked by a wide circle of supporters in both political parties, who speak of him, "Green Clay Walker is a fine fellow, and a dandy good County Attorney. He ought to be kept on the job for another term." It is now known that the Fiscal Court for the next four years will be a new Court an inexperienced body of men, required to handle for the County, important matters, new questions of big concern. This body must rely on the County Attorney for legal guidance, and business advice. It is all so plain how the County needs the services of one well experienced as is Mr. Walker, after next January. Therefore from this day of announcement until the closing of the polls in November, the voters, for the reason suggested and for many others, which will probably be presented in the future, will give serious and favorable concern to the candidacy of Mr. Green Clay Walker.

The party authorities and leaders present him to the public as the very best material to be had in the county for County Judge.

Mr. Williams was born and raised in our county. His active and successful business life has been spent here. He is widely known as one of our most progressive farmers and stockmen. His successful leadership of the Bryantsville Bank, as cashier, has given him training as a business man of wide experience, so essential to satisfactorily handle the responsible fiscal affairs of Garrard County.

The candidate is a man who in private life makes good his promise, therefore many voters now look hopefully forward to his installation into the office of County Judge of Garrard County. Hon. J. C. Williams thereby having the road system of the county placed upon a real business basis, and not handled as a political asset nor as a family grant, with the unanimous endorsement of two Mass Conventions, the executive committee of his party with satisfaction, presents the candidacy of Hon. J. C. Williams for County Judge of Garrard County, with confidence that he will be elected in November.

The class or standing of a community is invariably judged by its officials. There can be no better index to its high standard than this one fact. Certainly if the casual observer were to form an estimation of Garrard county on this basis, it could be none other than the highest. And among those who are prominent and efficient workers, none stand out more prominently, than does our present jailer, David Ross.

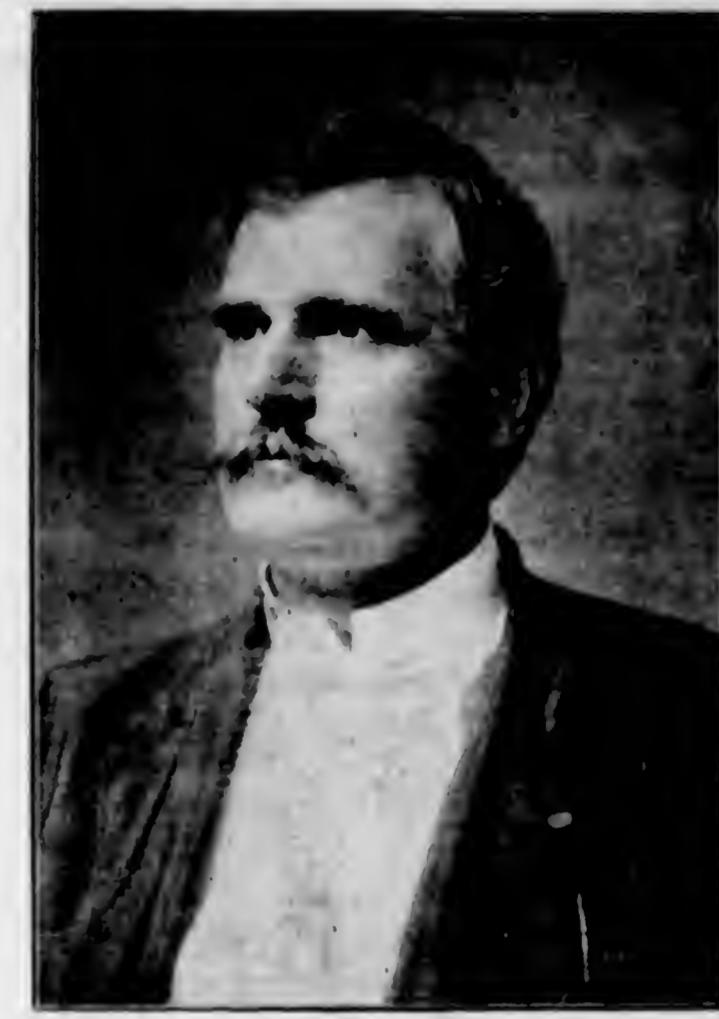

It will not be a new and untried office with him, for he is familiar with every detail; it would not be speculative on the part of the voters, as to whether he could fill the office satisfactorily and efficiently, for he has served the people faithfully in this capacity for a number of years. That his election will be certain, is not denied by his many friends, who believe that he has made his "calling and election sure" and that he will succeed himself as jailer next November.

J. H. CLARK For Magistrate

It is practically conceded by all that J. H. Clark has made one of the best magistrates that Garrard county has ever had and now that he asks for a renomination of the Democratic party, it would be but a fitting tribute to his services during the past four years, to re-elect him to this most important post in the gift of the Garrard county constituency.

The salary of the office is not in keeping nor commensurate with the arduous duties incumbent upon a magistrate, but the pride with which he takes in his home county, irrespective of the small remuneration should endear him to the people of the county, whom we believe will elect him to this important office next November.

JUDGE CHARLES A. HARDIN

Since the formal announcement of Judge Charles A. Hardin, as a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge of the 13th Judicial District to succeed himself in that office he has been confined to his home in Harrodsburg, Ky., very desperately ill from the effects of a carbuncle on his neck. However, his supporters and friends, who are numbered by practically all who know him in this county, will be happy to learn that he is rapidly convalescing and his physician announces that he will soon be able to be at his post again. Judge Hardin served as Circuit Judge to complete the term made vacant by the death of the late lamented, Judge M. C. Saufley and was elected to succeed himself. It appears practically certain that he will have no opposition for the nomination and almost as certain that no one will oppose him in the final election.

As a presiding Judge he is very popular with all connected with the Courts of his district. Polite, courteous and patient in dealing with the bar, litigants, witnesses and jurors has won them the deepest affection.

Having a keen sense of justice, applicable to the affairs of business, and a fine judicial mind, which with the patient hearing he gives to all controversies submitted, usually results in a correct outcome of most cases that pass through his court. The result is that few cases that are taken to the Court of Appeals from his district are reversed. In all, Judge Hardin has made a popular and satisfactory Circuit Judge and the voters of the district will be pleased that he is to serve another term.

ROBERT H. TOMLINSON

Robert H. Tomlinson, Jr., who is democracy's choice to represent the county in the Lower House of the next session of the Kentucky General Assembly, can boast above all things that he is a Garrard county product. He was born in Garrard county and has three generations on each side of the house, who have resided in Garrard; he has always lived in this county, all of his interests are here, and here he proposes to remain. This, to our manner of thinking, goes far toward the making of the kind of representative Garrard county should have in the legislature, for a man of this birth and breeding must of a necessity have the welfare of the county at heart, and will do his uttermost to further her interests.

Mr. Tomlinson is a son of Hon. R. H. Tomlinson, Sr., who is known, loved and revered by the people of the county as is almost no other of her citizens. That he is his father's son stamps the brand of the young man's democracy. He is 26 years of age and a graduate of the Kentucky University Law School, or he will graduate in June. His law school career was interrupted by the World War, and promptly answering his country's call, he was sent over seas, where he remained in France and England for fifteen months; after the armistice he returned home, and at once resumed his studies.

We feel sure that with the election of Robert Tomlinson to the Kentucky Legislature, Garrard county will have placed her interests in the keeping of one who will properly safeguard them.

DAVID ROSS

The above likeness needs no introduction to the constituency of Garrard county. He has served efficiently as our county jailer for several terms and now asks to be re-nominated in the Democratic August primary.

The class or standing of a community is invariably judged by its officials. There can be no better index to its high standard than this one fact. Certainly if the casual observer were to form an estimation of Garrard county on this basis, it could be none other than the highest. And among those who are prominent and efficient workers, none stand out more prominently, than does our present jailer, David Ross.

It will not be a new and untried office with him, for he is familiar with every detail; it would not be speculative on the part of the voters, as to whether he could fill the office satisfactorily and efficiently, for he has served the people faithfully in this capacity for a number of years. That his

EXTRAVAGANT PROMISES UNFILLED.

The wildest and most extravagant promises were made by the leaders who were afterwards successful at the polls that the number of officers connected with the State administration would be reduced, the expenses of the State administration much less and taxes would be immediately and perceptibly cut. As to how well this promise has been kept you may be advised by calling upon the sheriff and learning the amount of your taxes for 1921 and compare it with any previous year anteceding the election of this republican administration. In fact, not only has your land assessments been enormously increased, but the rate of your taxation has been increased by republican legislature, and the democratic committee does not think that any voter would care to vote the republican ticket at this time for the purpose of formally approving the republican State administration. The sensible thing to do is to reprove the administration by a vote for the other party.

For more than three years the republicans have been in control of the United States Senate. Last November by an unprecedented majority the republican President and Congress were elected. The country now appreciates the eight years of happy prosperity under the democratic administration by the paroxysm of hard times and financial disaster that has enveloped the whole country under the republican control. It is admitted that the direct cause for the tragic decline in all farm products is caused by there being no foreign consumption at this time of our surplus. In other words, the republicans refused the Peace Treaty arranged by the former administration and have failed to make such arrangements with the foreign countries by way of a substitute for the former peace treaty as will open up the markets of the world to our surplus cotton, tobacco and hundreds of other farm products in which we have a surplus. Much of the financial distress which is wrecking or about to wreck so many business people heretofore prosperous and successful, is being caused by the errors and mistakes of our opponents and their inability to get together upon a foreign policy and carry it into effect which will include an arrangement for the foreign countries to take over our surplus which is very large and which those countries are sadly in need.

This is becoming the consensus of popular opinion and is so generally believed that Harding is now synonymous with Hard Times. We have enough of both already.

The committee therefore, urges that it is a mistake for the people to vote to approve the national administration at this time, but on the contrary the administration should be warned of the distress which involves the business industries of this agricultural country and the vote of criticism may lead it to activity which may tend to relieve the present financial stress. A capable and worthy ticket is presented with the hope and expectation that it will be elected by the people for many other reasons beside those mentioned herein.

Fighters and Fighters.

Fistic fans are speculating at a lively rate on the result of the coming fight between Georges Carpenter, the French war hero, and Jack Dempsey, the American "fighter" who failed to fight for his country.

The money is on Dempsey, but popular sympathy and favor is unquestionably with the Frenchmen. National pride should prompt a person to root for his countryman, provided that countryman is one worthy of the name.

But—Carpenter quit fighting in the ring in order to fight the enemies of his country.

Yarn of Dog's Eyes.

Here is a story which the collector of true dog yarns might like to add to his list: A gentleman had a dog whose eyes were remarkably different in size. Whenever a stranger dined at the house the dog played a trick on him. He would first get fed at one side of the guest, and then go around the table to his other side and pretend to be another dog!

Secret of Happy Life.

The secret of the happy life is found in the direction of our eyes and the order of our thoughts. Which do we look for first, complaint or praise? Which goes first into our scale for estimation, trial or mercy? Are we looking part way up to compare ourselves with more successful men, or far beyond success to the center of our life and joy?—Exchange

Nothing creative ever yet came out of a crowd unless it was put there first by individuals and smaller groups. It is friends talking by the fireside who make history; and the choice of friends is perhaps the most responsible job which falls to a student's lot.

The true resistance of man against catastrophes is an amalgamation of humanity. Love one another, aid one another. Solidarity of men is the resort to complicity of mysterious facts. Approve Sapiro Plan.

Great Meeting in Lexington on Thursday Night Discusses Tobacco Situation.

Lexington, Ky., May 27. That Lexington may be the center of the proposed co-operative tobacco marketing association when it is formed, practically was announced here last night by Aaron Sapiro, marketing expert, in his address at the Phoenix hotel before bankers, tobacco growers and warehousemen from almost every county in Kentucky. Unanimous endorsement of the plan outlined by Mr. Sapiro was given by those present at the meeting.

Lexington, the speaker said, has all the facilities for handling and housing the tobacco as a central point. It is proposed to make Lexington the chief market center of the whole state, and offices of the association probably will be located here.

The meeting in Lexington is regarded by leaders in the movement to organize a co-operative marketing association as the most important in the history of the industry in the last 15 years.

Endorsement was made in addresses by Senator J. N. Kohue, Mason county, Dr. Samuel H. Halley, Lexington, Desha Breckinridge, editor of the Lexington Herald, at the conclusion of the speech by Mr. Sapiro.

More than 200 prominent men who had been invited to this conference by the preliminary committee on organization to hear Mr. Sapiro, composed the audience. At the conclusion of his address, questions were fired at him from all parts of the audience. He declared after the meeting that a close and careful study of the plan was evidenced by the detailed nature of the inquiries.

A vote of thanks was unanimously tendered Mr. Sapiro by the men present.

Following the address of Mr.

Sapiro, John W. Newman, Versailles, president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, formed last year, asked that Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, who is chair man of the general committee, speak.

Judge Bingham said that his efforts had been inspired by a visit to California in which he saw the difference in the surroundings of the majority of the rural communities.

He declared that he had asked many questions to find what was underlying cause of this great progress among the farmers, particularly those of the classes that did not produce especially large crops.

He said that he had found the marketing successes to be conceded as the cause in every instance. He asserted that the advantages to the state would be very great.

"We know something ought to be done," said Judge Bingham. "The plan under which we have been selling our tobacco is wrong."

Mr. Breckinridge then was asked to express his views. He said he was not connected with the tobacco industry, but that he had heard Mr. Sapiro explain the proposition twice and that he had failed to find any fallacies in his arguments. He asserted that he hoped the plan could be found successful and bring to Kentucky farmers the same victory which had been won in California.

"California has poorer crops, crops that are not universally used or needed, while Kentucky raises a commodity that is universal in its use, but California has an idea which in 1920-21 enabled four out of five of its farmers to make money, while Kentucky tobacco growers were losing money," Mr. Sapiro, who is counsel for a group of California co-operative marketing organizations, said in his address.

He explained the California co-operative marketing plan, which is being adapted to the tobacco industry.

Mr. Sapiro also told the growers that while it was the desire to incorporate the organization in Kentucky, the heart of the burley tobacco growing industry, that unless the Kentucky laws regarding co-operative marketing organizations were amended it would be incorporated in North Carolina.

He said that a bill amending the Kentucky law, which forbids pools, had been prepared and will be ready for presenting to the next session of the Kentucky legislature.

The California plan, Mr. Sapiro said, had been adapted to the handling of 22 farm products, raised by 80,000 farmers and worth in aggregate $250,000,000 annually. He then told of the adaptations necessary to make it effective in tobacco.

He characterized the plan as the farmers adopting merchandising methods instead of dumping their crops on the market.

The speaker asserted that the tobacco grower alone was responsible for the breaking of prices of tobacco.

There is no reason, he asserted, why the entire crop should be dumped on the market within a few weeks. He characterized the present method of marketing tobacco through the auction system, whereby the buyer bids in tobacco at the rate of four baskets to the minute, as the most amateurish followed in the marketing of any farm product.

The grower, he asserted, has no idea of how the price is fixed or what it will be.

The planned organization will only be completed if contracts binding growers 75 per cent of the burley tobacco grown in the county agree to sell only thru the co-operative organization for a period of 5 years, he said. Then the industry will be divided into 22 districts, each containing as nearly as possible one twenty-second part of the entire crop.

The growers each will elect delegates at the rate of one to about a million pounds of tobacco and these in turn will meet and elect 22 directors, all of whom must be growers.

The other directors would be named probably by the governors of the states in which the tobacco is grown, to represent the public.

The warehousemen, he said, will not lose a thing. Their plants will be leased or bought to handle the tobacco and the expert grade the tobacco for the growers and prepare it for market. The tobacco would be handled in such a way that the crop would be sold only as the market could absorb it at a living price, he added.

The contracts under which the growers would pledge their tobacco to the co-operative organizations are binding and the courts have upheld them, Mr. Sapiro said. He asserted that in fourteen cases co-operative organizations had forced "welching" growers to deliver their crops.

The proposed organizations, he said, would have no capital stock and would pay no dividends. The crop would be marketed over the entire world wherever there was a demand, and the best available talent would be employed in the work.

In telling of the movement as a whole Mr. Sapiro said that it was planned to form a separate organization of the growers of burley tobacco, the dark tobacco growers of Western Kentucky, and the growers of bright and sun-cured tobacco in the Carolinas and Virginia. They will, however, be co-ordinated in their workings.

"Marketing of agricultural products," he said, "is essentially a group problem. It depends upon what your neighbor raises and the absorption power of the world."

"Every year you are told that there is an over production of tobacco. This is for the purpose of beating down the price. You were told this year that the buyers would take only 150,000,000 pounds of the burley tobacco crop. Already they have taken more than 250,000,000 pounds.

"The tobacco marketing plan has been worked out with due regard to the Kentucky and federal laws. The organization will be a non-profit co-operative association.

"The agreements, when the organization is completed, will bind the growers to deliver their tobacco to the co-operative for five years. Where the landlord and tenant divide the crop, an agreement will be made which will enable the organization to market the crop and they pay off the rent. The tobacco will be received at local points and graded and sold.

When Mr. Sapiro concluded his address on the program for co-operative marketing of Kentucky tobacco he was bombarded with questions which he answers speedily. The questions were offered informally from the floor the questioner remaining seated. The principal questions and answers were as follows:

Has the contract of the growers with the growers' marketing association been drawn up?

These are being drawn up and it is hoped that they may be circulated next week. The contract will be very elaborate, outlining many details.

Does the title of the tobacco go to the association when it takes it over?

It does. The association on receiving the tobacco can do what it desires with it.

What kind of receipt does the producer receive?

The producer receives a receipt showing the grade and amount of tobacco turned over to the association. The association keeps the warehouse receipt.

Is an advance made on the tobacco on its receipt?

A meeting is held with bankers as one of the first important steps. Financial arrangements are made and if possible on the day of delivery, customarily within 2 hours at least after delivery, the advance is made. It is requested that all take this advantage.

Does the contract affect the land or only the tobacco?

The contract affects only the tobacco. It does not compel man to raise tobacco or attempt to force him to raise any certain amount, but does control all the tobacco which he raises.

What about the agreement between landlord and tenants?

This always brings complications at first. A written agreement between the landlord and tenant is nearly always the result.

What is the period of each pool?

The period of each pool is a single year, but a single crop year's pool may be carried over for marketing through other seasons.

What happens if a man doesn't go in?

If a man stays out he simply stays out. If the whole association deals with the factories they will soon stop going to special trouble to take small crops from outsiders.

How do you tell when 75 per cent sign up in the association?

The committee makes a survey. In the contract each man states the amount of tobacco grown the previous year. This is the basis.

Has the Supreme Court ever passed on the Clayton amendment?

The Supreme Court had the Clayton amendment and especially Section 6, under which this association will incorporate, before it. It interpreted this section. It therefore had the opportunity to declare it unconstitutional and by interpreting it instead discloses its acceptance of it.

Does anything planned conflict with the Kentucky anti-trust laws?

It is not believed these will cause any great difficulty. Some believe it will. A new law will be offered seeking to make the formation of the association undoubtedly legal.

What law will be introduced?

The law permits any kind of co-operative marketing association, but it says just what the association can do and what it cannot do.

Will it be considered class legislation if farmers are given special privileges in marketing?

Agriculture is the only industry which has individual production. This will be the point raised and it will prove successful.

MANY INDUSTRIES TIED TO TOBACCO

Prohibition of Weed Would Mean
Big Financial Loss to Allied Trades.

WHO USES THE MATCH?

The Smoker Mainly—Also Responsible for Spending Hundreds of Millions
Annually for Licorice, Sugar,
Coal, Cigar Boxes, Tin
Foil, Etc.

By GARRET SMITH

"Get a match?" How many times a day is that question asked in these United States? How many more times is the question unnecessary because most pockets are kept well supplied with the useful little article? Anyhow, inasmuch as it is estimated that there are 30,000,000 tobacco users in the country, we would guess that the answer to that question would run into the hundreds of millions.

For if it weren't for the smokers in these days of electric lights how many matches would be used? A pretty small proportion of the number of these "sticks of blazes" produced in the country every year. Abolish tobacco and the match business would be shot to pieces.

But the match business is only one of a dozen or more allied industries which derive large revenues directly or indirectly from the tobacco trade and would suffer heavily if national prohibition of tobacco were to go into effect as some of our reformers would have it. The annual sales of tobacco products, based on retail prices, is estimated at $1,000,000,000. Of the cost of producing and selling this quantity of cigars, cigarettes and other forms of the weed, some hundreds of million dollars are paid out for other things than the raw tobacco and labor of making it up.

$25,000,000 a Year for Boxes

For example, the tobacco trade consumes each year 45,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 30,000,000 pounds of sugar, both used in flavoring tobacco, and 250,000 tons of coal. It is estimated that the value of wooden cigar boxes used is $25,000,000 a year, quite an item to the lumber business and to manufacturers of the boxes.

In making these boxes 250,000 pounds of nails are employed. Other large items used in making and preparing tobacco for sale are tin and lead foil, paper for bags and cigarette wrappers, cloth for tobacco bags, labels, coupons, etc., involving the printing trade extensively.

Then building contractors and manufacturers of machinery are largely interested. Investments in plants and machinery employed in manufacturing tobacco are estimated at $100,000,000. Replacement, upkeep and interest on the investment make no small sum annually.

And let reality men note there are approximately 325,000 tobacco farms in the country, with a total estimated valuation of $1,000,000,000 of further interest to real estate men is the fact that there are 700,000 retail establishments selling tobacco, involving a total rental and up-keep impossible to estimate, besides the large amount of office space occupied by administrative branches of the general business.

The insurance men, too, have their share of the pickings. The tobacco business pays out annually $7,000,000 in premiums in the United States.

And there are the railroads who reap revenue from 2,200,000 tons of tobacco products every year.

As for the advertising business, here again it is impossible to form any estimate of the enormous annual outlay.

The prohibition of tobacco would also knock a good-sized hole in the receipts of the United States government. The internal revenue receipts from tobacco for the fiscal year 1920 amounted to $255,800,000. Customs duties provided an additional $25,000,000 in round figures, making the total revenue return to the government $280,000,000.

Influence on Popular Sentiment

It is this interlocking of the tobacco business with so many other interests and the vast amount of financial loss that would be involved in the abolition of tobacco that is one of the most serious aspects of the proposal to prohibit the sale of tobacco, a proposal, however, which has little support by public sentiment if the newspaper editors of the country are correct in their estimate of that sentiment.

In a poll of the editors made recently by the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, through the Press Service Company of New York City, 95 per cent of the 7,847 editors who replied expressed the opinion that the people of their communities were opposed to any law against tobacco. As these editors represent some 3,000 newspaper readers the results form a pretty general test of national opinion.

In their remarks accompanying their replies many of the editors expressed it as their opinion that the opposition of their communities to the abolition of tobacco was based to some extent at least on the damage such a change would do to the business interests of the community. This was particularly true in the tobacco growing states and centers where there were large tobacco plants.

But when the extent of the business involved in the allied interests of the tobacco trade is considered, as above briefly outlined, it is clear that there is hardly a section of the country that would not be affected directly or indirectly by abolishing tobacco.

MANY FORMERS

Keep Record Of Crop
Production Costs.

One hundred Kentucky farmers are keeping cost production records on tobacco and more than 25 are keeping similar records on all farm operations in co-operation with the Farm Economics Department of the College of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture. Those keeping tobacco production records are equally divided between the Burley and dark tobacco growing areas. J. C. Melvin is assisting farmers in the Burley section with their records while J. H. Buton is performing a similar work in the dark tobacco district. The number of tobacco records being kept this year is about the same as that of last year, according to Prof. Nichols, head of the Farm Economics Department. The number of complete records is larger than in 1920, however, since farmers in the State are producing other crops than tobacco.

Bichloride Of Mercury
Controls Chick Ailment.

Coccidiosis which attacks chicks from the time they are three to four weeks old until they are mature and which causes the death of many of them may be controlled by the use of one part of bichloride of mercury in three thousand parts of water as a drinking water for the chicks, according to members of the Veterinary Department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Bichloride of mercury tablets and directions for making the solution may be obtained at any drug store.

The disease which is a common one among young chicks causes a greenish white diarrhea and eventually results in the chicks becoming sluggish and their feathers ruffled. It is caused by a coccidium which lives in the intestine and sets up an inflammation.

In view of the fact that the disease is carried in the droppings it is necessary that all infected chicks be isolated from those having the trouble. Care also should be taken to see that healthy chicks are kept off soil which has been occupied by those having the disease.

Any symptoms of this disease or any others in the poultry flock should be promptly investigated and remedies applied in order to prevent the loss of a large number of chicks, the department has suggested. Poultrymen having diseases or trouble in their flocks may secure information by sending specimens of the diseased birds to the Veterinary Department of the Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.

There are a great many points of resemblance between the Mongolian and the American Indian. They extend to personal and even religious observances, notwithstanding the fact that the Mongols have long been converted to Lamaism, one of the most exacting and intolerant of religions.

"Another puncture!
Dad will catch us sure, he's got LEE Puncture-proof tires on"

If "foresight" was as keen as "hindsight", there would be no embarrassing, distressing and costly delays on account of punctures.

Lee Puncture-proof pneumatics are all the name implies. In every essential of material and manufacture they are equal to any tire you can buy. Thru this one feature—elimination of punctures—they surpass all others.

If other well-made tires were puncture-proof they might be just as good. But because this is an exclusive feature, Lee Puncture-proof tires are by far the best for any service where the saving of time, labor and money is desirable.

On cars used for business or commercial purposes this is especially true.

And it needs only one or two unfortunate experiences with punctures to convince the average car owner that it is wisdom to be on the safe side with Lee Puncture-proof tires.

We will be glad to demonstrate.

Washington's Religion.
There has been considerable controversy over the extent to which religious belief entered into Washington's character. His own chronicles show that most of his Sundays, except during the presidency, when he felt obliged to set an example, he spent in answering letters, going over his accounts, hunting or doing any business that those with whom he was negotiating had no scruples. In choosing people to work for him he set up no barriers of creed, judging men from the standpoint of honesty, industry and ability.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

It is Not Too Early to Begin Planning to Dry and Can Some of Your Garden Crop—The Photograph Shows Suitable Equipment for Canning and Some of the Attractive Results.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture
It is particularly desirable to can or dry the fruits and vegetables raised on the farm, as the raw products can be gathered and treated when absolutely fresh and at just the proper stage of ripeness and tenderness for best results.

The average farm family probably eats annually more than 150 quarts of fruits and vegetables, the greater part of which is fruit. Canning clubs have been instrumental in stimulating interest in canning on the farm. The drying of fruits and vegetables, an old farm art until recently on the decline, has been revived quite generally within the past two years. This process offers a good means of preserving perishables without entailing expense for containers, as in canning.

PLENTY OF MILK HELPS CHILDREN

Provides Needed Supply of Protein for Building Up Muscles and Body Tissues.

but if that cannot be had it is better to use clean fresh skim milk than dirty or questionable whole milk. A quart of skim milk, even separator skim milk, contains about a third of a cupful of solid food, while nearly all there was in the whole milk, except the butterfat. In feeding skim milk, however, it is necessary to make up for the missing butterfat by giving the child plenty of butter to eat. If it is absolutely impossible to get fresh milk, then condensed, powdered, or evaporated milk may be used.

Contains Much Lime.

Computed with most other foods, milk contains much lime, but very little iron. Spinach and other green vegetables and egg yolks, on the other hand, are very rich in iron. This is one reason why combinations of egg yolks and milk and of vegetables and milk should be given a child.

When milk is given in bairds the child is usually taken from it, and it is safe to do this for all young children. When milk is used as a drink it should be sipped, not gulped down.

FRUITS ARE OF IMPORTANCE

Valuable Chiefly Because They Supply Growth-Stimulating and Body-Regulating Substances.

The uses of fruits in the diet are much the same as those of green vegetables, though, unlike most vegetables, they have a considerable percentage of sugar, especially when they are dried, and sugar is a quickly absorbed fuel food. Like vegetables, they have value because they contribute some of the nitrogen required for tissue building and repair, and some energy, food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say. However, they are valuable chiefly because they supply growth-stimulating and body-regulating substances and also mineral matter needed for bone and for many other purposes. The quantity of these materials in fruits and vegetables is small, it is true, but large in comparison with the amount in many other common foods.

Earliest New England Dwellings.

It is generally thought that the first kind of dwelling built by the early settlers in New England were log cabins, but as a matter of fact, these pioneers often felt obliged to wait until after they had reaped their first harvests before they took the time to erect anything so durable and elaborate as a weather-tight cabin. Like the primitive people of southern Europe, like the Indians of Mexico, they used what caves they could find. But often they merely dug in, finding a shelter much as the armies in France did during the war.

The New Ten Commandments

1. Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but thou shalt pull off thy coat and go to work that thou mayst prosper in this affair and make the word "failure" spell "success."

2. Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a loner, for thou shouldst know thy personal appearance is better than a recommendation.

3. Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those who chide thee: "I didn't think."

4. Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus will thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given thee.

5. Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine own integrity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will lessen the good respect of thyself.

6. Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job, nor his salary nor the position he has gained by his own hard labor.

7. Thou shalt not fail to live within thy own income, nor shalt thou contract any debts when thou can't see thy way clear to pay them.

8. Thou shalt not be afraid to blow thy horn, for he who faileth to blow his own horn on the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him.

9. Thou shalt not hesitate to say "no" when thou meanest "no" nor shalt thou fail to remember that there are times when it is unsafe to blind thyself to hasty judgment.

10. Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last great commandment, and there is none like unto it. Upon this commandment hangs all the law and profits of the business world.—Anonymous.

Thought Cuban Call Was a Joke.

On April 13th, we had our telephone communication with Cuba.

The ticket operator answered a "tx" signal on a Macon-Atlanta circuit expecting a "wh report" from Atlanta, when "ticket from Havana, Cuba," greeted our ears.

The operator "grabbed" for a ticket, her breath, and the supervisor all at the same time.

Finally the service was over and she managed to compose herself long enough to record the details of the ticket and announce the call to the called telephone. After announcing to the called telephone that "Havana, Cuba, was calling Mrs. O'Conner," the operator was stunned by the subscriber hanging up the receiver (thinking that it was only a joke.) Finally on reannouncing the call we convinced her that it was a real call, and the connection was established.

At first, Mrs. O'Conner could not realize that the person to whom she was talking could be in Cuba, for the connection was as plain and clear as if he had been in the same city with her and talking over a different telephone. —Southern Telephone News, Macon, Ga.

Trouble comes mainly to those who recognize it as such.

If some one doesn't come along with a fresh sensation we will have a tedious day of it tomorrow.

This is a good country. It will continue to be a good country as long as its people are good citizens. Let's have no other kind.

Spring Fever.

(Atlanta Constitution).

What is called "spring fever" was first known when one of the first fisherman heard the call of the river on a mid-April morning and beckoned to a boy who looked like a bait digger.

A nearby field was calling, too; for there was battle of the grass going on there, before which the young and tender plants capitulated.

But the fisherman heard only the river's voice; the bait was there, for the digger; and the little boy was willing.

So the man and boy, they went the river way, the one not caring a snap whether or not the fish were in a hitting humor, and the other almost equally indifferent after he had climbed a tree and robed a bird's nest.

Fishing is fine—when, in spring time, they bite awake; but "the sweet influences of sunny spring time weather makes drowsing and dreaming on the green banks of river the most delightful thing in the world."

Even the "pull" of the fish that proverbially "gets away," can't rouse the dreaming victim of "spring fever."

Its effect is somewhat like the old colored brother tried to describe:

"I des so lazy
De yaller fly light on me,
But I never tell him 'Shoo'—
I I so lazy

I done what to do."

Most willingly the world falls a victim to it. The lines fall from the listless hand of the hired man who drives the slow team afield; the man at the plow at the furrow's steady turn, leans restfully on the plow-handles and almost nods his head off.

Only the field birds look lively, and the crows that wait the corn-dropping are alert.

It's "spring time" and the crops will come to harvest, even if you grow a sunny hour or two away.

That's the philosophy of it.

But—deliver the spring garden from much of that happy-go-lucky philosophy.

Better make a determined effort to shake off the spring fever habit and get the garden going.

Then, when there is drowsing time, you'll have something worth while to dream about, while birds and winds sing you to sleep.

Tons of Petals.

Italy's perfume manufacturers consume 1,800 tons of orange blossoms, 600 tons of roses, 150 tons of Jasmin and violets and 15 tons of Jonquils annually.

Box of Green Lumber Weakens.

Packing boxes made of properly seasoned lumber are found to resist rough handling six to ten times as well as those made of green lumber. The reason as demonstrated by the forest products laboratory, is that the fibers of the moist wood shrink away from the nails as the stock dries, and so lose their grip.

At The "B. R. Z."

Margaret, 8, obliged to spend a night with her mother at the Y. W. C. A., awoke to insist upon a drink. Mother was compelled for lack of a glass and fountain to make a drinking cup of her hands. Margaret, very much impressed, frequently recalled the incident and several months later astonished us by asking: "Mother, why don't you ever let me drink out of your hands like you did that night at the B. R. Z.—Cleveland Plain Dealer."

An Interview With Col. H. C. Whitehead, Remount Service, U. S. A.

Despite our present-day motor-driven vehicles and trench warfare, the ratio of horses to men for the Allies was as one to four against one horse to each 3½ men during our own Civil War. And had the former conflict lasted a few weeks longer, the shortage of horses would have been woefully acute. The broad plans of the American Remount Association for selective breeding are, therefore, an important link in our chain of national defense.

The above is a statement by Col. H. C. Whitehead, of the U. S. Remount Purchasing and Breeding Service.

"NICKY" THE QUARTER STALLION

Seen at his headquarters in Lexington, Colonel Whitehead vonchanted breeding and the care selected in rearing colts. They will belong to the breeder—the Government will have no strings on them. The owner will be privileged to sell them to whomsoever he pleases at any time. They will be horses admirably adapted to work in both peace and war times.

"But the Government will depend upon them for its supply; and the importance of the horse to the modern army is to be fully realized by the comparison of Azores already cited pertaining to the use of the horse in the last great war with those of his use during the Civil War.

"As regards thoroughbred horses racing, every practical horseman knows that it is, first and foremost, vitally necessary in order to test the quality of individual horses—it is the final achievement that goes to measure their value for breeding purposes, and is thus decisively instrumental in the work of preserving and improving the thoroughbred horse as the main upon which depends the preservation and improvement of all our other kinds of horses and mule mares.

"Meanwhile, the evolution of thoroughbred horse racing has given the world a great outdoor sport—one that the world truly enjoys. If the attendance at our metropolitan race courses may be taken as evidence of popularity, and which, wherever properly conducted, is assuredly healthful and innocuous, insofar, at least, as concerns its effects on the great majority of normal-minded citizens.

"The State of Kentucky is innumerable the richer for her industry of breeding thoroughbred horses and its concomitant seasons of racing. Millions and millions of dollars are invested in property throughout the state as a result, and in this taxable wealth contribute to the holdings of millionaire enthusiasts whose establishments are located in the Bluegrass District by any means.

"Many a Kentucky farmer is also a breeder of the thoroughbred—and often the male of a colt or filly net him more than the products of a son's work on the farm.

"Undoubtedly the sport of racing thoroughbred horses is a tremendous business asset to the state. Parts such as, I dare say, the Kentucky Jockey Club readily can adduce in this connection very well might astound Kentuckians who have never considered the subject in its substantial and material aspects."

Just a Squatter on Abandoned Land

By KATE EDMONDS.

Cephas Merritt was dead—Merritt, the rich, eccentric, philanthropic old merchant of Grand Boulevard, whose name had been a synonym for integrity in Martinsville for forty years. And the big store and the bank and the innumerable pieces of real estate that he had owned here and there in the state capital had fallen to his miserly nephew, Hamilton Hall.

Hall spent five days with his lawyer, and at the end of that period discovered that one-fourth of Cephas' tenants had been living rent free for years.

But not all of Cephas' tenants had been poor; one of them, Miss Sidonia Travers, occupied the old Travers mansion on Harland Heights, which had come to her on the death of her father twenty years previously. When Hall read this name he whistled; and when the lawyer told him that she, too, lived rent free, he whistled again.

"You see, it's this way, Mr. Hall," said the lawyer. "Miss Sidonia believes that the property is hers. She's got only a tiny income of six dollars a week outside it, and if she has it she'd be practically a beggar—she and her niece, Mary Travers."

Mary Travers was prettier than ever, in Hall's eyes. When he saw her enter the old-fashioned drawing room in flame of jealousy of Blaine burned in his heart. His greeting of Mary was in itself a triumph.

"Sit down, Miss Travers," he said. "I have something to say to you. You know, of course, that my uncle is dead?"

"Yes," answered Mary. "He was a good man and an old friend of my ands. I am sorry, Mr. Hall."

"Well, that's more than I am, by long odds," Hall answered. "Don't you know that I've fallen heir to everything he had? Yes, and I find that I'm worth a cool eight hundred and fifty thousand at the lowest estimate. Now, Mary, I want you to be sensible. Be my wife. Don't be infatuated by that mate Blaine. He's a good, honest fellow, no doubt, but he'll never be anything."

"Mr. Hall," said Mary, rising, "I cannot bear any more."

"What, you won't marry me now?"

"Never!" she cried angrily, confronting him with blazing eyes. "I hate and despise you!"

"Then why don't you marry Blaine?" sneered Hamilton Hall. And, as she did not reply, he continued:

"I'll tell you why. You're waiting until your aunt dies so as to get her property. But it isn't hers—it's mine."

"This house is not my aunt's," she cried.

"No, Miss Mary, it's mine," Hall answered. "But if you'll throw Blaine over and marry me I'll settle it on Miss Travers for life. Give me a kiss and then I'll make you love me—I mean."

Vincent Blaine was at the door, Hall turned, to see Blaine advancing upon him with clenched fists.

"What's the matter with you?" Hall shouted.

Blaine did not strike him, for Hall was a much smaller man. Instead, he quietly wrenches his chair from his grasp and, taking his shoulders in a firm grasp, shook him backward and forward till the man's head wagged foolishly upon his shoulders.

"There goes Travers House," murmured Mary, as she nestled into her lover's arms.

"What do you mean?" asked Blaine, grimly. And Mary told him.

"Vincent, dear," she said presently, "we have a hard fight before us. Now that we must fight shoulder to shoulder—help me out, Vincent."

He pressed her in his arms.

"When?" he asked, kissing her.

"Next month," she whispered back.

But long before the date set for their marriage arrived Hamilton Hall had begun his legal battle.

"We're at the end, Mary," said Blaine, despairingly. "The case is scheduled for next Tuesday, and we've no answer to make."

"That means a death sentence to Aunt Sidonia," answered Mary, weeping.

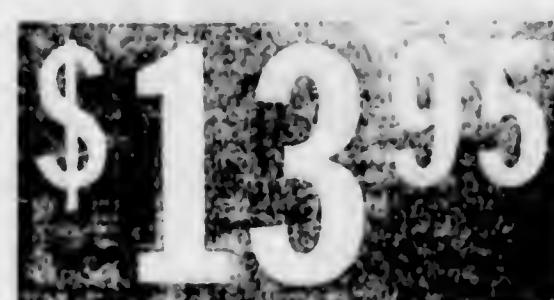

"By the way, did I tell you I've got a new lawyer?" asked Blaine presently. "He used to be a partner of old Pugill—the man who acted for Mr. Merritt so many years. He wants us to attend a conference the day before the trial, to be held in his offices. He seems to have a card up his sleeve; I'll call for you on Monday at nine."

Blaine called for Mary and took her to the lawyer's office in a car. There they met Hall with his attorney, and the five seated themselves around the table. Blaine's lawyer, a lank New Englander named Robertson, made his proposal.

"I find," said Mr. Robertson, fumbling with his papers, "that Miss Travers has occupied the premises unchallenged for over twenty years, four months, and nineteen days. You are aware, of course, that under the common law, as amended in this state, that gives her indisputable ownership."

"But she thought it was her house," yelled the other.

"A great blunder," answered Mr. Robertson. "We confess unreservedly that it was not. She was a squatter—just a plain squatter on abandoned land. But I guess she'll squat there for a good many years longer, gentlemen."

Pigs and Poultry.

Miss Julie Logan, District Home Demonstration Agent, Mr. A. S. Chapin, Specialist in Poultry Extension, Mr. L. Hall of the Club Department, College of Agriculture, Lexington, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Miss Joyce Syler, Home Demonstration Agent. Mr. Chapin visited the boys and girls in the county, who are in poultry work and also a number of farmers, who are doing work with pure bred poultry. On Thursday evening Mr. Chapin gave a talk on "Poultry" to a very interested audience in Luana Vista.

Mr. Hall was here in the interest of the Lancaster Hustlers Pig Club recently. He visited a number of the boys, but will return for an all-day visit June 7th. The boys are showing a splendid interest in their club. The club holds its regular meeting on the first and third Tuesday in each month at the Court House. Visitors are always welcome.

They Resist Decay.
The northwestern Indians nearly always made their totem poles out of western red cedar, but this choice was probably due more to the fact that the wood is easy to work and extremely durable than to its fragrance. Lieut. Richardson's Sacrifice

By WILLIAM FALL.

1912, Western Newspaper Union.

All through the hot forenoon Lieutenant Richards had fought like a leader of heroes, braving death a dozen times from the spiteful Filipino bullets that hissed overhead; yet, though man after man had fallen in the thinning ranks, he was unscathed. And the more he sought death the harder it seemed to die.

With a mere handful of the seventy-nine who had been cut off from the main forces by the cunningly contrived ambuscade, Richards had fallen back upon a hill, one of those smooth, isolated hills that emerge here and there in the northern region of Luzon. There, hard pressed, the little remnant of Squadron B were holding their own against the enemy's marksmen, waiting for the arrival of the relief column from Santa Catherina. It was strange how it seemed to Richards as he lay on his face in the lustering sunlight. His mind went traveling back to other scenes, other days—no that last day in Washington before he sailed away.

He had sat all the cool afternoon with Lucy Graves on the porch of the old house. Lucy was an old sweetheart of his boyhood.

On that last afternoon he had asked her to be his wife, to wait for him.

Then Lucy, whom he had never seen discomposed, broke down and sobbed in his arms. She was engaged to a fellow soldier, whom she loved, no longer. But the traditions of her family forbade her to break with him.

She did not tell him the name. But Richards had imagined that it was some officer he knew.

The memories vanished with the sudden cessation of the hissing above them. Richards knew what that meant. The enemy was preparing to charge. They came upward, and, finding that the defenders made no reply, swooped in with a zest, wings flying, keen, razor-edged blades flashing back the light of the declining sun.

Next moment it was hand to hand. For a full minute—hours, it seemed—the fighting was fierce. Then the attackers were suddenly retreating and the besieged drew a little closer together.

Richards stooped and raised a wounded man at his side. He knew well—Sergeant Hutton, one of the recruits.

"Sergeant, I'm going to put you beyond these rocks," said the lieutenant.

Hutton was fulfilling at his throat. He opened the blood-stained tunic and disclosed a little locket of gold. "Open it," he whispered. Richards obeyed and found himself looking upon the face of Lucy Graves.

"She gave it to me," the sergeant whispered. "We were to have been married the day before I sailed. It was postponed at the last moment, till I came back. If I die you'll carry my love to her."

"I'll tell her," he said. "But you'll pull through, Sergeant. Now lie still behind this rock and wait till the relief arrives."

A wild yell burst forth from beneath the hill, resounding from 500 throats. The Filipinos were charging again.

And this time they charged home. Suddenly, far down the valley, the clear notes of a bugle rang through the air. Then, over the stillness of the afternoon came the faint sound of jangling spurs.

"Now, men," Lieut. Richardson shouted, "each of you take a wounded man on his shoulder and retire down the trail. I'll stay here and cover you until you reach the road." And, stepping behind the rock, he seized the rifle of the wounded sergeant, and, crouching over him, began pumping bullets into the ranks of the enemy, and then, catching up the wounded sergeant, crept down the hill. It was a whole minute before the natives discovered that he was gone. "We'll pull through, Sergeant!" he shouted cheerfully to the man on his back, and stumbled onward. A yell from the ridge answered him and a renewed volleying. Then—splat! a red-hot wire seemed to be pressing against the lieutenant's arm, and, looking down Richards saw that the pale yellow of his coat was turning a bright charred color. Zip! That one nipped him across the cheek, gradually a delirium took possession of him. The sky, the earth, the trees spun round him. He seemed to be in Washington again seated at Lucy's side, under the oaks only the thought of her sustained him for a few yards more. Then, quite suddenly his legs crumpled beneath him and he reeled and fell forward. Lucy's face was slipping out of the blackness of night.

"Tell her I—I wish you all happiness, Sergeant," he muttered.

Out of the profound gloom he rose through a region peopled by spectres to consciousness of his surroundings. He was lying in a bed and a mat in a white linen suit was bending over him. "Well!" he said, "you're doing famously now. We'll have you round in short order, Captain."

"Captain? I—"

"Ah, you haven't seen the Gazette. That was a special order of the President. And they're talking about the congressional medal for you."

"Hut—Sergeant Hutton?"

"Ah, poor fellow! I guess you'll have to know Captain. You had best carry a corpse from the first. He was hit by a bullet just before you picked him up, and must have died instantly."

Gold Mining Now Possible:

There is scant romance in gold mining today, when natural science has taken the place of pioneerism and chance. There is none at all in the recently published statement of a San Francisco magnate who announced that his workmen and expert geologists had blocked out $60,000,000 worth of ore in one Arizona mountain in the last two years, and that excavation and the production of bullion would now begin.

First Use of Kerosene.

About the middle of the Nineteenth century kerosene was used in lamps instead of whale oil, lard, olive oil or some other such oil. The change was the result of the development of the wells in the United States.

Minds of Lower Animals.

It is generally known that many animals possess in a greater or less degree the same senses that we ourselves have, sight, hearing, smell, touch, temperature, and so on, and that many of them experience such emotions as fear, anger, grief and joy; but it is not quite so certain that they have even the elements of reason as we understand that term. Their minds are like ours only in the degree of their intelligence.

College Positivism.

In Heywood Brown's article in the Bookman on positivism in our colleges, he mentions that when he was at Harvard "there was a pretty general agreement that life was a sham and a delusion." Apropos, we recall, albeit vaguely, a remark by Doctor Jewett, who said, as nearly as we can remember, that while he was at Oxford the students were fond of referring to themselves by the Greek term of "Agnostic," overlooking the fact that its Latin equivalent is "Ignamus." —Boston Transcript.

SOUTHERN

Puts Up Coal Rates

Raises Cost Of Shipments to Louisville, Cincinnati; Lowers Them For Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., May 28—Reductions in freight rates on the coal and coke shipments to Lexington from the Queen & Crescent route from Southern Kentucky and Tennessee mines, and advances from the same points to Louisville and Cincinnati, were announced by the Southern Railway system.

The new rates, saving Lexington an average of 22 cents a ton in freight, will become effective June 16th, when the reduction from Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia mines, announcing May 10 by the Louisville & Nashville railroad also will go into effect.

Reductions to Lexington from West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky mines are expected to be announced soon by the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad.

The cut in rates is in accordance with the understanding between all the railroads entering Lexington and the Board of Commerce. It was agreed on at a meeting of coal operators and railroad officials in Cincinnati last month, and approved, where necessary, by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In addition to the mines in Southern Kentucky and Tennessee mines on the other subsidiaries of the Southern also are affected by the new rates.

Rates to Louisville are increased from 31 to 54 cents a ton, depending on grades and shipping points, and the rates to Cincinnati from 37 1/2 to 43 1/2 cents a ton.

Hogs Suffer Unless Provided With Shade.

In view of the fact that hogs are non-sweating animals they suffer greatly from the heat during the summer months unless given some protection in the form of shade or water for wallowing purposes, according to animal husbandrymen. Concrete wallowing tanks are satisfactory for keeping the animals cool but where it is impossible to have these shade has been found to be the most practical form of relief.

If there are no trees in the pasture field to afford the necessary relief from the heat of the sun a good shelter may be constructed by setting some short posts in the ground covering enough space so that all the hogs can get under without crowding. Some two by four-inch or other lumber may be nailed to the top of these posts and then covered with light boards to form a roof. The boards must be nailed down to prevent their being blown off by the wind. If the owner wishes the building for a permanent shade rafters can be set up and the structure made more complete.

A shed-roof type of building 14 feet long and five and one-half feet high in front sloping down to three and one-half feet high in the back has given satisfactory results at the College of Agriculture farm, according to Prof. E. J. Wilford. No sides are put on the building as a free circulation of air is desirable.

Where concrete allowing tanks are used for keeping hogs cool a small amount of oil should be placed in the water to prevent contamination and to assist in keeping the animals free from lice.

Fitting Of Show Sheep Should Be Started Now.

Kentucky farmers who expect to display sheep at the State and county fairs this fall should begin now to prepare the animals for exhibition, according to suggestions of sheep specialists from the College of Agriculture. It is necessary to feed about three animals for each one which is shown, according to the specialists who suggest that the best individuals be selected and kept in clean pens or pastures. In order to make a good showing the animals should be well-muscled and firmly fleshed when shown. They should be prime about the time of the last show, not too fat or too thin that their backs are not smooth and firm on top.

"Sheep with straight legs set wide apart having thick legs of mutton and smooth, wide straight backs should be selected," said Prof. L. J. Horlacher. "It is well to clip the sheep early in order to get a good growth of wool by fair time. They should also be dipped immediately after shearing.

"When the wool has grown out sufficiently it should be carded out straight and smooth and at least two or three trimmings made previous to the fair. This will keep the wool fibers parallel and the lines of the sheep even. If blankets are used after the last clippings to keep out dirt care should be taken to see that the sheep do not get too warm. Sheep should be trained to stand correctly and should have plenty of life when showing."

Washing Bottles.
The sediment in water bottles or cruets can be easily removed by rinsing thoroughly with a little hydrochloric acid, followed by clear water or ammonia water.

Wise Uncle Jasper.
Speaking of women and logic, a Chicago Tribune correspondent is minded of a remark of his Uncle Jasper after a verbal tiff with Aunt Hepzibah. Flushed with retreat, Uncle observed: "There is only one person in the world, son, who is a bigger dam fool than a woman, and that is the man who tries to argue with her."

Deadly Germs on Bank Notes.
When one of the one-franc notes, used so commonly in Paris, was subjected to microscopic examination, the chemist's report showed there were more than 230,000,000 germs attached to it, the accumulation from dirty bands and untidy treatment while it was in circulation, many of the germs being of a deadly nature had the bill come in contact with a cut in the flesh.

The organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination—the stomach, liver and intestines—especially need the proper action of any of these organs is largely dependent upon the correct functioning of all the others. "Whipping" your liver into a bowels with calomel or forcing your bowels with cathartics is a great mistake. A better, safer plan is strengthening and toning the whole digestive and elimination system with Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), which not only tones the liver, but also relieves pain and loss of appetite. It acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, improves digestion and assimilation, overcomes biliousness, corrects constipation and quickly removes such bad effects.

Our system thoroughly cleaned and purified for once; stomach, liver and bowels working together in vigorous harmony. And you will not have to take medicine every day, but only occasionally to keep your system in good condition and always feel your best. Remember it is easier and cheaper to keep well than to get well.

Something Wrong.

Frederick had his fifth birthday. He used to a little celebration on those events in the family, he thought this one dull, as nothing but a birthday cake marked the day. The following day he said: "Mother, didn't you forget to send out birthday cards?"

Died With Their Prey.

In the extraordinary diatom beds at Lompoc, Santa Barbara county, California, occur untold millions of skeletons of a small herring, while in the upper strata are many remains of predatory fish which had entered what was once a bottle-shaped bay in order to feed on herring. This is evident from the fact that one of the skeletons of a large mackerel has two herring skeletons in what was once its stomach.

Much Virtue in the Onion.

No doubt he is a prejudiced witness but there may be something all the same in the theory of a large grower of onions that this odorous vegetable has a "kick" which could command to those who miss their accustomed alcoholic stimulant. It certainly strengthens the breath quite as effectively as strong drink ever did.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
